understand them. Plaintiff does not recall seeing anything such as the Principles. Plaintiff does not recall using the Help Center.

INTERROGATORY NO. 2:

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 2:

Plaintiff objects to this Interrogatory as compound and consisting of at least five subparts. Plaintiff objects to the lack of a time frame on grounds of relevance and undue burden, and responds only as to the time period from January 15, 2011 to October 7, 2011. Plaintiff also objects to the Interrogatory as overbroad and unduly burdensome. Subject to those objections and the General Objections, Plaintiff responds as follows: Most of the things Plaintiff "Likes" are pages of things in which he is interested. Plaintiff often uses the Like button to support bands for which he has an affinity for, and / or to show an interest in them. Plaintiff also uses the "Like" button to see photos or get information that is only made available to those how click on the "Like" button. "Liking" Warrior Dash was one such example. Plaintiff wanted to see pictures and learn more about the sporting event.

INTERROGATORY NO. 3:

DESCRIBE the PRIVACY SETTINGS in place for YOUR Facebook.com account(s) on August 1, 2009 and any changes YOU have made to YOUR PRIVACY SETTINGS since that time, including the reasons for the settings YOU employed for YOUR account(s) on August 1, 2009 and the reasons for any modifications YOU made thereafter.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 3:

Plaintiff objects to this Interrogatory as compound and consisting of at least three subparts. Plaintiff objects to the time frame on grounds of relevance and undue burden, and responds only as to the date of Plaintiff's initial signup, and the time period from January 15, 2011 to October 7, 2011. Subject to those objections and the General Objections, Plaintiff responds as follows:=: When Plaintiff first made his account, he took a look at the settings. Because they were to general and open, Plaintiff made everything available only to direct "friends". This was when Plaintiff first signed up. Plaintiff doesn't recall making any changes since then.

INTERROGATORY NO. 4:

IDENTIFY all relevant dates, if any, on which YOU changed YOUR PRIVACY SETTINGS to "opt in" or to "opt out" of FACEBOOK's Social Ads, and the reasons YOU did so.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 4:

Plaintiff objects to this Interrogatory as compound and consisting of at least two subparts. Plaintiff objects to the Interrogatory as vague and ambiguous as to what is meant by "relevant dates." For purposes of this Interrogatory, Plaintiff objects to the lack of a time frame on grounds of relevance and undue burden, and responds only as to the time period from January 15, 2011 to October 7, 2011. Subject to those objections and the General Objections,

Ĝ

Plaintiff responds as follows: Plaintiff is am unfamiliar with a privacy setting as defined as Social Ads. With regard to Facebook Ads, Plaintiff does not recall ever seeing this option before. He does not believe he has made any changes to this because he does not recall having ever seen this option before. Plaintiff became aware that he could opt out of Facebook Ads a few months ago, and thought to do so, but forget about doing it.

INTERROGATORY NO. 5:

DESCRIBE any money or property that YOU contend YOU lost due to FACEBOOK's conduct alleged in the COMPLAINT and all bases for and facts supporting your answer.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 5:

I lost money because I was not paid for my appearance in one or more Sponsored Stories advertisements by Facebook. I would expect to be paid for being in an ad. The amount of the money I lost would be measured by how much Facebook was paid for using my name and/or likeness. Plaintiff expects to be paid for being in an advertisment. Facebook charges more money for ads in which a person's name is shown to his or her friends. The Sponsored Stories thus cost more than equivalent ads, and are worth more by Facebook's own admissions as stated by its CEO and COO as stated in the Complaint. Plaintiffs also point to the Nielsen reports discussed publicly by Facebook, documents produced in litigation and deposition testimony which confirm the worth of the endorsements and the fact that Facebook charges more for them. The Plaintiffs' right to be paid also stems from the common and statutory right of publicity (Civil Code section 3344), and from the common law of unjust enrichment which, provides that non-celebrities are to be compensated for nonconsensual uses of their names and likenesses in advertisements. The value of Plaintiff's endorsement is at least $750 per endorsement.

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 15:

Plaintiff objects to this Interrogatory as irrelevant, not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence, and calling for private information of third parties.

INTERROGATORY NO. 16:

DESCRIBE the circumstances under which YOUR parent(s) and/or guardian(s) became aware that YOU had or intended to open a FACEBOOK account, including whether YOU asked for YOUR parent(s)' and/or guardian(s)' permission to join FACEBOOK and their response(s).

RESPONSE TO INTERROGATORY NO. 16:

Plaintiff had several discussions with his father about using Facebook. Many/most of his friends had accounts that they used for socializing, as well as for school work related collaboration. In the end, Mr. Tait agreed to set up an account, but only with a clear discussion about the implications of the use of various privacy/security settings, and what was reasonable use and content. The discussions happened periodically in 2009 and 2010, with increasing frequency in the Summer of 2010, leading to opening the account in August 2010.
